TODAY IN HEADBÄNGER HISTORY

April 25, 1980 – Black Sabbath release their ninth studio album, Heaven and Hell. It's the first Sabbath album to feature Ronnie James Dio as lead singer, who replaced Ozzy Osbourne. The album goes on to reach platinum status in the U.S. [WATCH VIDEO BELOW]

April 25, 1988 – Doc McGhee, manager of Bon Jovi and Mötley Crüe, pleads guilty to importing more than 40,000 lbs of marijuana into the U.S from Colombia via a shrimp boat. McGhee receives a five-year suspended prison sentence, a fine of $15,000, and is ordered to set up an anti-drug foundation. He gives back to the community by organizing the Moscow Music Peace Festival, an all-star hard rock event dedicated to promoting world peace and helping curb illegal drug use in the Soviet Union. Ironically, several of the headliners at the time were heavy drug users, including Ozzy Osbourne, Skid Row and Mötley Crüe.

April 25, 2004 – Billy Joel crashes his 1967 Citroen into an empty house in Bayville, NY and cuts his hand. It was Joel's third car accident in two years. No one was seriously injured.

April 25, 1994 – Adam Horovitz of the Beastie Boys is sentenced to 200 hours of community service for attacking a TV cameraman during the memorial services for actor River Phoenix.
